Priorités d'adaptation dans les CDN des pays Africains

The image displays two screenshots of the Africa Adaptation Initiative (AAI) website. The left screenshot shows a map of the world with red pins indicating adaptation priorities across various countries, with a significant concentration in Sub-Saharan Africa. The right screenshot shows a grid of 24 African countries, each with its name and flag.

Les priorites sont exprimees soit en termes de secteurs ou de risques et vulnerabilities pour lesquels il faut prendre des mesures d'adaptation

SECTEURS

- Agriculture (including livestock and fisheries)
- Ressources en eau

OTHER (les 2nd les plus proches)

- Sante
- Ecosystemes, terres, forets
- Zones cotieres
- Infrastructures
- Energie (tres peu)

Vulnerabilites et risques

- Secheresse
- Inondations
- Erosion / degradation zones cotieres
- Degradation / desertification des ecosystèmes terrestres et marins

- La plupart des CDNs presentent un bon resume des plans, politiques et strategies cles (national, sectorial) et constituent ainsi un bon point de depart pour une planification integree
- Les synergies sont specifiquement recherchées avec :
 - Les plans de developpement
 - Les plans de reduction des risques de catastrophes
 - A un degre moindre avec : la gestion durable des terres, conservation des forets, gestion des zones cotieres

- La plus part mettent l'accent sur la necessite d'accéder aux moyens financiers, le renforcement de capacites humaines et institutionnelles et transfert des technologies pour une mise en oeuvre réussie des CDNs
- Identifie les priorites d'action conditionnelles et inconditionnelles que le pays a l'intention d'entrerprendre et constituent de ce fait un bon point de départ pour la planification et la programmation de l'adaptation
